PAN-EUROPEAN COLLABORATIONS - THE VISIONS OF A SCALE UP CONTINENT

MAY 21ST 2019

ON STAGE

Florian Bercault – President and Co-founder - Estimeo

Graduate of Sciences Po and HEC Paris, Florian started his career at a platform of participative investment incubated by ENGIE. This passage through digital and inclusive finance drove him to co-develop new evaluation methods of companies, especially startups, for investors.

At the same time, Florian taught social finance at Sciences Po and is lecturing economy and risk management at the International School of data processing science (EISTI).

Involved on different sectors, Florian is vice-president of the young financial executive's club, member of the Advisory Board of Orange Business Services, vice-president of French-British Connections, and, member of the Preventive Risk Management Review editorial board. He regularly publishes in national and specialized medias.

Estimeo is a rating platform for startups and estimates your innovative projects' potential using a 100% automated predictive algorithm.

Elsa Bernadotte – Co-founder & COO - Karma

Elsa is the Co-Founder and COO of Karma. Elsa is passionate about creating a motivated high-growth organization to galvanize the first zero food waste generation. Karma now has 55 employees globally, who have the collective goal to lead the way to a truly circular economy and ultimately solve global food waste.

Prior to founding Karma, Elsa, a serial entrepreneur, founded Pop Fruits a healthy ice-cream alternative where she spearheaded operations in four markets. Elsa sold the company and soon thereafter founded Karma. Elsa has featured on the Forbes '30 under 30' list, Ledarna's 'Top 75 Female Leaders in Sweden 2018' and Dagens Industri's '40 hottest serial entrepreneurs under 40'. A Swedish native, Elsa moved to London in 2019 in order to launch Karma in the UK. Karma's London office has grown to 13 employees in two short months.

The Karma app allows users to buy high-quality, heavily-discounted food directly from local food retailers, therefore reducing food waste and boosting the profits of independent food retailers. Current initiatives on food waste, simply look to incinerate this waste, or to compost it, therefore not offering a long-term, sustainable solution to the issue. Since launching, Karma's 520,000 users have diverted an average of 284 tons of edible food from landfill and reduced CO₂ levels caused by food waste by 426 tons.

After a successful launch in London, Karma is embracing the world of gastronomy and launching with over 100 partners in the 2nd and 9th arrondissements in the French capital, Paris.

ON STAGE

Luka Crnkovic-Friis – CEO - Peltarion and AI-expert

Luka's background is in engineering with a specialization in artificial intelligence, primarily deep learning. He founded Peltarion in 2004 together with Måns Erlandson. They were convinced then as we are now that artificial intelligence is the next industrial revolution - it will change everything. Not a single business will remain unaffected. However, for true democratization and mass adoption the key is having good tools. It was not the steam engine itself that led to the exponential changes, but the machine tooling that allowed many companies build affordable, reliable steam engines. The same goes for artificial intelligence.

Today more and more companies are curiously approaching AI and discovering its endless possibilities. There's a growing sense of its revolutionary and global impact - and Luka's mission in life is putting its power in the hands of the many.

Peltarion provides an operational AI platform for producing real-world AI applications at scale and at speed. It's user-friendly, intuitive and end-to-end.
