Prix d'Excellence 2023

SAAB France receives "le Prix d'Excellence 2023" from the Swedish Chamber of Commerce in France for its remarkable performance on the French market in terms of capacity to create bilateral strategic industrial and technology collaborations, the ability to build French-Swedish intercultural understandings, and the achievement of excellent business results, linked to the strong company innovation culture in the areas of defense, security and civil protection.

SAAB is a publicly traded company on the Stockholm Stock Exchange, with the primary shareholder being the Wallenberg's family controlled Investor Group. SAAB operates primarily in the fields of aeronautics, shipbuilding, defense and security. Innovation lies at the core of the group's strategy, with research and development expenditures accounting for 18% of its revenue.

Saab France embodies the spirit of innovation in service to nations and populations, at the core of the strategic Franco-Swedish innovation partnership, one of whose development axes is cooperation for security.

Established in 2016, the French subsidiary is experiencing rapid expansion. It supplies equipment to the Air and Space Force, the Army, and the National Navy, as well as various B2B partners. Additionally, it engages in civilian activities, including providing air traffic management equipment to the Paris Airports. SAAB's ambition is to strengthen its cooperation with its French partners and to develop its industrial and technological presence in France.
